In Memoriam: Cecile Kramer 1926-2007

James Shedlock, AMLS, AHIP, Director, j-shedlock@northwestern.edu

I write to share the sad news that Cecile E. Kramer, director of the medical school library from 1975 to 1991, passed away Thursday, January 25, 2007. Cele had been in declining health for the past year or so.

Cele Krammer

Cele came to

Northwestern from Columbia University's health sciences library. A native of New York City, she began employment at Columbia in 1944 after graduating from high school and starting work as a secretary. She advanced in the health sciences library to become an assistant director while earning her undergraduate degree at the College of the City of New York and a Master's degree in library science at Columbia. She completed all the course work for her doctorate in library science.

Cele was very active in her profession serving in a number of roles within the Medical Library Association (MLA). She was a continuing education course instructor for human services management; she was editor of the MLA News; she served in leadership roles within the New York-New Jersey Chapter of the MLA; and she was named a Fellow of the MLA in 1993.

As part of the Galter Health Sciences Library's ongoing efforts to meet the information needs of our users, the library recently rolled out its new liaison program. The program creates ongoing partnerships between the library and its constituents by pairing librarians with departments, centers, institutes, and programs at the Feinberg School of Medicine (FSM). This endeavor will enhance communication, collaboration, and the effectiveness of the library in supporting the education, clinical, and research needs of the FSM community. While the library has spent years forging relationships with individuals and departments at FSM, the liaison program serves to formalize these connections and provides a model for establishing further partnerships and collaboration.

New Acquisitions Librarian: Anna Fleming

Mark Berendsen, MLS, m-berendsen@northwestern.edu

Anna Fleming

Please welcome Anna Allegra Fleming, our new Acquisitions Librarian at Galter Health Sciences Library. Anna joins the Collection Management Team and is responsible for purchasing books, journals, and electronic resources for the library. She is also excited about playing a role in cataloging new materials the library acquires.

Anna brings with her a wide array of library-related experiences. Her most recent titles include Custom Licensing Manager and Library Relations manager at the University of Chicago Press where she sold electronic journal content to large academic libraries and library consortia. Prior to that Anna was the Director of Library Services at the Art Institute of California—Orange County, an undergraduate college offering programs in advertising, design, and culinary arts. As Director of a completely new library, she built the library from the bottom up—from developing the collection to delivering reference services. She has also held positions as Reference Librarian at the Leavey Library of the University of Southern California and Grants Information Manager at the Suzzallo Library of the University of Washington.

Anna grew up in Venice, California, four blocks from the beach. In her spare time she enjoys cooking, reading, and gardening. She is a member of the Art Institute of Chicago and the Field Museum. Long before becoming a librarian, Anna worked in the marketing department at the headquarters of Starbucks in Seattle. We can all blame Anna for our caffeine addictions.

In Memoriam: Cecile Kramer 1926-2007

This article was featured in Library Notes, #43 (Winter 2007).

I write to share the sad news that Cecile E. Kramer, director of the medical school library from 1975 to 1991, passed away Thursday, January 25, 2007. Cele had been in declining health for the past year or so.

Cele Krammer

Cele came to Northwestern from Columbia University's health sciences library. A native of New York City, she began employment at Columbia in 1944 after graduating from high school and starting work as a secretary. She advanced in the health sciences library to become an assistant director while earning her undergraduate degree at the College of the City of New York and a Master's degree in library science at Columbia. She completed all the course work for her doctorate in library science.

Cele was very active in her profession serving in a number of roles within the Medical Library Association (MLA). She was a continuing education course instructor for human services management; she was editor of the MLA News; she served in leadership roles within the New York-New Jersey Chapter of the MLA; and she was named a Fellow of the MLA in 1993.

Cele was very proud of her accomplishments at Northwestern. She worked diligently to build up the medical library's collections of books and journals. While she was not shy about being a 'book person', Cele promoted the use of information technology whenever she could. She made a point of hiring young librarians who would apply the latest trends in technology as a means of providing quality services to Northwestern users. She introduced intermediary MEDLINE search services in the late 1970s, and she was instrumental in starting and developing the Barnes Learning Resources Center (LRC) with Ed Tawyea, now university librarian at Thomas Jefferson University. She consulted with the late John McGowan, university librarian from 1971 to 1991, about how to bring the automation advances he was developing with the library staff in Evanston to the Chicago Campus.

She worked closely with Dean Harry Beaty and the medical school's Office of Development staff to attract Mr. and Mrs. Jack Galter as donors to support the renovation and expansion of the medical library. Though she longed to see the library's physical facilities match the expansion of the collections, she realized that she would not stay at Northwestern long enough to enjoy the benefits of the renovation project. She retired in 1991 as planning for the new library got underway.

Cele was devoted to her family -- her brother and his children and grandchildren. She moved to Florida to be close to all of them. Though retired, she continued to work at the libraries of Florida Atlantic University. Again, she took great pride in providing quality information services to undergraduate students, many of whom were following her model of going to school while working full time.

Her family has requested memorials be sent to the Florida Atlantic University Libraries, www.fau.edu (FAU Foundation) or the Hospice of Palm Beach County, www.hpbc.com.

Conservation and Restoration of Cowper's Anatomia (1739)

This article was featured in Library Notes, #43 (Winter 2007).

The Library's copy of William Cowper's Anatomia corporum humanorum (1739) from the A.D. Black History of Dentistry Collection has been restored and returned from the bookbinding and conservation studio of Martha Little in California. The oversize folio, measuring 52 x 36 centimeters has had a near complete makeover. The spine covering was entirely missing as were corners on the boards.

The volume was disbound, pages thoroughly cleaned; leaves and end sheets repaired; new threads replaced the well worn and rotted ones; new cords were added and the book block was completely re-sewn. A new leather spine was added, integrating it with the original leather; corners of the boards were rebuilt with paper mache and toned with acrylics to match the color of the leather. Another 300 years of use has been added to this distinguished volume.

The volume is noteworthy inasmuch as Cowper, a great anatomist and surgeon in his own right, "borrowed" the majority of the plates from a 1685 edition of Govard Bidloo, a Dutch anatomist. Cowper did not give Bidloo proper credit for his involvement in this work, however, it may be argued that Cowper's text was better!

Viewing the library's historical and rare books is by appointment only. Please call (312) 503-8133 or email for an appointment with the Special Collections Librarian.

Cowper's Anatomia needed a little work.

The spine covering was entirely missing.
