Your chairman has been actively at work. He has received from the Secretary of every state society in this country, lists of names of those members interested in the subject of Biology and Bacteriology. These gentlemen have been written to, with an earnest request that they prepare papers for this department of the Congress. Many have declined with thanks for the invitation; some have accepted, and many are yet to be heard from. Have you a paper for our programme or any advice to offer?

An early reply will very much oblige

Yours very truly,

Dr. G. V. Black
