Mr. Black

Dear Doctor:-

Have been reading the circulars you sent out to your committee relating to work to be done at the Columbian Meeting. The more I think about the matter the more I know I better not say much. I think this however. The dental profession as a rule are very far from being scholars and will continue to be for some time. This itself will prevent any radical change in the language - whatever might be the advantage. I think suggestions as to the words now used and recommended and the manner of making new words when necessary will be about the limit of the work you will be able to get-through with, and here it is beneficial. I believe myself that as far as possible Latin words should be favored - after that to do the best we can - anyway to favor certain methods and expect the intelligent members of the profession and the better class of recruits to gradually improve the language - When the President of one Society speaks of the "Molders" another of "Front-Incisors", another of "Cocoonine" a fourth of this and a fifth of that and all prominent men what are you going to do - but suggest & recommend

I hope you are well

Yours truly
